

Gardener Lindy Young delivering a composting workshop.

Picture: Beth Taylor

Room to grow as a caretaker

KEEN gardeners have been invited to help look after two gardens in Huntly.

Arts organisation Deveron Projects is looking for a new volunteer garden caretaker for their Square Deal and Brander Building gardens.

Prospective caretakers can expect plenty of gardening, but also chances to make friends and learn new skills.

The volunteer would be working alongside gardener Lindy Young, as part of a year-long project called Caretakers' Garden.

A Deveron Projects spokesperson said: "Both of our gardens are overflowing with life, rich with wildlife and – hopefully – food for all to enjoy.

"Through regular meet ups, workshops and work parties, Caretakers will be involved in developing and caring for all areas of the gardens, from the veggie beds and greenhouse, to the new wildflower meadow, forest garden and accessible raised beds."

Contact Deveron Projects producer Jenny Salmean on jenny@deveron-projects.com or 01466 794494. People interested can also drop by Deveron Projects' office, behind the library. Access is via the white gate at the top of McVeagh Street.