Wanted: People to open up gardens

PEOPLE are being asked to think about opening their gardens for visitors on Hairst day next month.

Two dozen private and community gardens were nominated to be judged earlier this month in the competition hosted by Huntly Community Council.

The majority of gardens visited were nominated for their floral displays.

The Town is the Garden team at Deveron Projects is now inviting people to get in touch if they would be prepared to open their gardens or food growing space to visitors on September 7.

The Town is the Garden Project is supported by the Climate Challenge Fund and aims to help individuals and groups grow more of their food by hosting workshops and providing seeds and plants.

It hosts activities on food preservation, cooking and eating.

Anyone willing to have visitors should contact the team by email at townisthegarden@deveron-projects.com or call in at No 8 Castle Street.
