

Round the table discussions at the Climate Justice Youth Club, which meets in Square Deal.

Youth focus on climate

HUNTLY'S new Climate Justice Youth Club is now in full swing.

It meets in Square Deal every second Friday between 4pm and 6pm – and the next get together is tomorrow.

The club is for young people living in and around Huntly aged between 14 and 25 years old.

So far they have been chatting about their concerns for the climate and coming up with solutions and actions which could be taken both locally and further afield.

Learning about current climate justice initiatives has also been a key part of the club.

The group have been looking at local farm Grampian Graziers, the new UK-wide youth movement Green New Deal Rising and the global student strike action Fridays For Future.

The Square Deal garden is also getting a makeover with the help of the group, with plans for a meadow to be planted in the near future.

The club is part of artist Hussein Mitha's project The World is Ours, in Spite of All.

Future meetings for anyone interested are June 10 and 24; July 8, 15 and 22. Transport can also be arranged by email to info@deveron-projects.com
